ASIA PACIFIC WEEK 2013:
Pushing Boundaries
Sunday 30 June – Friday 5 July

Asia Pacific Week 2013 will bring together 100 of the best and brightest student delegates from around the world to discuss the significant and controversial issues facing the Asia Pacific region in the 21st Century.

During the weeklong conference, delegates will hear from a myriad of academics and diplomats, and participate in a range of interactive and challenging sessions. The conference will also present delegates with opportunities to engage with policymakers and socialise among themselves, providing the next generation of Asia Pacific specialists a network of contacts and friends across the globe.

Apply now.

Applications open
11 February – 4 March 2013 (AEST)
This event is open to later year undergraduates and postgraduate students from all universities around the world.
